The Outreach Lecturing Fund (OLF) allows Fulbright Visiting Scholars who are currently in the United States to travel to other higher education institutions across the country. Each year some 800 faculty and professionals from around the world receive Fulbright Scholar grants for advanced research and university lecturing. The purpose of the OLF is to allow these scholars to share their specific research interests, speak on the history and culture of their home country, exchange ideas with U.S. students, faculty and community organizations, become better acquainted with U.S. higher education, and create linkages between their home and host institutions and CIES.

Mikiko NISHIMURA is Senior Associate Professor of Sociology of Education at the International Christian University (ICU), Japan. Her Fulbright research funded project is about “Prospects for a New International Strategy in Higher Education: A Comparative Analysis of Global Citizenship Programs in Japan and the U.S.”

The purpose of her research is to examine how higher education institutions in the U.S. and Japan, especially liberal arts colleges in both countries, regard civic engagement as a core value of their education and develop and evaluate their program to draw implications for future strategies to nurture global citizenship.

This is a CC CLUE Certified Event

Fulbright campus representatives and interested faculty are encouraged to attend.
