The Transgender Day of Remembrance (TDOR) is internationally recognized every year to commemorate the trans lives lost every year due to violence and prejudice. We gather to honor every trans life lost across the world. TDOR raises public awareness of hate crimes against transgender people, it publicly honors and mourns those lives lost that may have otherwise be forgotten, reminds non-trans people that we are people in their lives, and gives an opportunity for our allies to stand forward and join us in a candlelight vigil and memorializing those lives that have been lost this year due to transphobic violence.
