

Program Assessment: Consise, Clear, and Quick

Description

Good assessment practice should impose minimal burdens on faculty and the college. It also should produce useful results to inform program improvement. Assessment results and any actions informed by them should be reported in ways that are clear and consise. They should be stored and catalogued in a way that allows departments to have access to the information. This presentation will show how to access, use, and update their information using the updated reporting forms and the academic assessment website. Appropriate sharing will be discussed.

Topics include:

- ✓ The new assessment website
- ✓ Recording results with new forms
- ✓ Appropriate sharing
- ✓ "Fillible" PDFs
- ✓ Updating information
- ✓ Documentation and storage
