Outcomes Assessment Techniques

Assessment of student learning is often seen as a complicated process. Thus, faculty (and staff) often view it as an undue burden. This presentation/discussion explores ways that student learning outcomes assessment can be integrated into existing educational experiences. These techniques can make assessment of student learning at the program level (and course level) smoother, easier and less daunting for instructors, departments and programs. Attendees are strongly encouraged to come with questions/challenges they face in doing student learning outcomes assessment in their fields/departments.

TOPICS INCLUDE

Choosing appropriate methods for your program
Using the new shorter and streamlined reporting forms
Building an integrated system
The CSI assessment website
